Mini Drama	Romanian Radio Broadcasting Corporation ROR Romania	The Death Of Ticu, An Outlaw Of The Skirts	The short radio drama „The death of Ticu, an outlaw of the skirts” is a short story, written by Viorel Ilisoi that is inspired by the traditional customs and rituals according to the historical book “ Customs and beliefs of the Romanian people” written by Elena-Niculița Voronca in 1903 and reedited in 1998. The action takes place in a rural context/village, at the main character’s funeral, Ticu. During his lifetime Ticu used to be a womaniser. He liked all kind of women, even the married ones. In this regard he ends getting killed while making love with a married woman, by her furious husband. In the following we are witnessing the developing of his funeral. The focus stays mainly on how absurd, different, strange or even hilarious the customs can be. Everyone at the funeral, comes with different beliefs and superstitions, thing that turns the atmosphere into a black comedy. Meantime, on the other plan we have Ticu’s voice off, which was built across the plot in order to expose with a detached, sometimes even mocking attitude towards these funeral traditions. All this mixed feelings of crying and laughing during the funeral, have a deep moral philosophy. In the end it is only the end that remains.
